All vehicles with two (joint) registered operators are required to have a designated operator. The designated operator must be one of the two registered operators and would normally be the person who is the usual driver of the vehicle.

The designated operator will receive all traffic infringement notices that have not been served on the actual driver of the vehicle e.g. speed camera offences. This means that payment of the fine and any demerit points will be the responsibility of the designated operator. If the designated operator was not driving at the time of the offence that operator can complete a statutory declaration nominating the driver. The infringement notice will be re-issued to that driver.

How to nominate or change a designated operator

If you are one of the two registered operators you can nominate yourself or the other registered operator as the designated operator of your vehicle by completing this form. To nominate the Designated Operator you can;
